INTRODUCING TERRY MYERS

TRAINER • INSTRUCTOR • CLINICIAN • SPEAKER • AUTHOR

Terry Myers is a National clinician and champion horse trainer who offers a depth of knowledge developed over 45+ years in the horse industry.

Born in western Ohio, Terry began riding not long after he started walking. Growing up, he learned to ride both Western and English (including Hunt Seat and Saddle Seat), and showed in a variety of disciplines that went beyond your normal Pleasure classes including; driving, showing draft horses and contesting events.

From a young age Terry knew riding and training horses was what he wanted to do. He began starting colts at the age of 15, with a youthful willingness to get on any horse that was brought to him. As a teen, Terry worked with Quarter Horses and Appaloosas for many years. Later Terry trained and galloped Thoroughbreds for the racetrack.

In 1983, Myers founded the Terry Myers Training Center in Ostrander, Ohio which he continues to own and operate today. Myers began training multi-disciplined Paint horses including his Paint stallion Reckless Obsession. Under Terry's guidance, Reckless Obsession went on to become an APHA Champion earning several Superior titles along the way

“Terry Myers is a leading trainer, teacher and national clinician, but above all he is a true horseman.”

Myers' success continued with numerous other Paint horses, earning both National and State titles in Hunter Hack, Hunter Under Saddle, along with a variety of Western events.

With knowledge built upon a lifetime of proven success, combined with the passion and conviction to help others, it's Terry Myers' great pleasure to teach horse enthusiasts throughout the Nation what he calls “People Training for Horses.”

Terry Myers is available for instruction, training, clinics and expositions, as well as speaking engagements involving horses.

SEE THE TRANSFORMATION FIRST HAND

From willful
& dangerous

To a willing & obedient partner

Terry Myers offers training services for horses of all disciplines and breeds.

He has trained and ridden everything from a Draft and Gaited Horses through Ponies and Mules in a variety of disciplines including Western Pleasure, English Equitation, Barrels, Jumpers, Dressage, Saddle Seat.

No matter the horse's breed or discipline pursued, all horses should be light in the bridle and supple in their body; they need to be able to give to the bit and drive from behind.

Whether starting colts to fixing training or behavioral problems, this is always the goal.

MYERS

RIDE • IN • SYNC

Terry Myers spent nearly 15 years as the Intercollegiate Horse Show Association coach for the Ohio Wesleyan University Equestrian Team.

During this time, Terry instructed and observed riders as they learned basic horsemanship. The irony that lesson horses knew their job, but the riders kept getting in the way of the horses, made a tremendous impact on Terry.

Seeing the many students out of sync with their horses, led Terry Myers to develop Ride-In-Sync™ Horsemanship.

Ride-In-Sync™ Horsemanship is a formula for riding success, regardless of the horse's breed, or riding discipline. The complex, yet logical, principles behind Ride-In-Sync™ Horsemanship center around properly positioning the rider, thus allowing the horse to move correctly.

Regardless of the discipline, the Ride-In-Sync™ method improves the communication between rider and horse, producing visible and tangible results.

Terry teaches riders how to properly ask their horse to move, then, position their body in a way that allows the horse to do what is asked.

It's all about partnership in the truest sense of the word, resulting in horse and rider becoming in sync. For this reason, Terry Myers calls his horsemanship philosophy Ride-In-Sync.

Ride-in-Sync teaches horsemanship techniques which promote a partnership between horse and rider, under the philosophy that a horse cannot move properly until the rider is positioned properly. Terry Myers teaches riders how their body affects their horses' movement.

Ride-In-Sync clinics cover Horsemanship as well as ground work, Showmanship, Patterns, and Trail obstacles. Terry offers single-day, two-day and three-day clinics at the Terry Myers Training Center, at host facilities and modified versions at National Horse Expos and events.

"If your horse could talk, he would probably tell me

he wishes you would stop pulling and yanking on his mouth. He would like for you to sit properly and use your body in a way that allows him to move naturally."

LET HIS EXPERIENCE BE YOUR GUIDE

Whether a clinician, instructor, demonstrator, coach or trainer, Terry Myers brings a wealth of experience and knowledge to any equine expo or horse organization.

With the premise that "you can't teach it until you can do it," Terry Myers' success in the show ring speaks for itself, with numerous wins on both the Quarter Horse and Paint Horse show circuits.

Myers is personable, approachable and likable, he is charismatic and teaches in an entertaining and understandable way which only comes from experience.
